

This photograph was taken in Nash County. It is the original photo that inspired The Red Bandana Series. I was driving home and saw these migrant workers in a field picking tobacco by hand. I pulled my car over and snapped a photo. I began to wonder about their lives and found myself thinking about the unseen workers in agriculture in North Carolina. Although this was the first photograph I took, it was the fifth painting in the series.