

This photograph was taken in Halifax County. Workers ride on the back of the tractor and place seedlings into machinery. This is known as "setting tobacco." The machine digs a hole and drops a plant into each spot.

The seedlings were loaded directly from the farm's greenhouse onto a truck and then loaded onto the tractor for planting.